William Cox her elster had refused to marry Hannah.

Emma was a waitress at the Great Northern Botel, Anna said. Hannah was assistant night manager at the Metropole hotel. Emma Martin once worked there, and Hannah had been seeking to show her attention, the sister said. For a time they kept company then Emma refused him.

The following message was found among Hannah's personal effects.

"I, Ray Hannah, hereby will myself to Florence Whittson. I am going to kill my only sweetheart and true love, Emma Martin. Tell all my friends good-by and may God bless them and keep them from the hell I am going through for the sake of love and happiness. Signed, Ray Hannah."

ment street. I was going to marry the girl who had been my sweetheart since we were children. Then I learned I was indicted in New York."

Attorney Sandier explained the indictioner.

"The charge was brought under the bill of lading act. It seems that a credit was established between Greek and New York banks by the company. Goods were shipped to Athens, two double barrels of sugar, rice or like goods. Then the bills of lading wer altered to make it appear 2,200 barrels had been shipped.

"The following banks paid out money on the false bills: Guananty Trust company, Irving National bank, Mechanics and Metals bank, Equitable Trust company, and the American Express company. The real losers, even tailly, were the Bank of Athens, Ionian bank, limited, and the Bank of Economic National, all in Athens. All the officials of the company were indicted."

Pteriotis resumed:

"I cabled New York I was returning to clear my name. I was 'arrested aboard ship and held in $100,000 bonds in New York. I paid $6,000 to a bonds man and was cut for a few days when my bond was increased a thousand dollars; so I was thrown in again. They

Encourage the Florist

Send Flowers to Your Friends-Especially to

YOUR WIFE. Copyright, 1923, by Star Compa

A man with plenty of money was heard to say: "Among my economies I have stopped buying flowers." That is a foolish economy.

Flowers are to the spirit what heat is to the body. The spirit is more important than the body—better save some coal in your furnace and put the money into flowers that will make your children happy, bring spiritual light into your household and give your wife one fewer cause for regret that she married you.

The individual quoted did not say whether he had eased sending flowers to his wife or some young lady ble to hit high C.

Whoever gets the flowers as a present, as Emerson truly says, knows that such a present is a compliment, since it implies that the one to whom the present is given appreciates beauty. When you send flowers, in stead of sending something that will last long, you say with your gift, "These flowers are sent to one in whom the spirit outweighs the body," and that is a compliment

The editor's secretary, a gay young gentleman, took one of the roses, pressed it carefully, and seemed much delighted to have it. He explaind that he was not a victim of footlight fascination.

"I want to take that flower to my wife," said he.
"She would rather have me bring her a rose that this actress sent than anything else I could bring her."

An actress whose rose, given in chraity, is saved by a dashing young man, who gives it to his wife because the wife so greatly admires the actress, can truly say that she has been playing the right kind of parts and has not worked in vain.

DECEMBER 6 was the great children's day in Holland (andstillis) when San Nicholass appeared to warn the little girls and boys that good behavior was necessary if they expected to receive any Christmas presents. These he delivered himself traveling over the housetops on his horse, dropping gifts down the big, wide chimneys.

When he took trips out of Holland, later on, he exchanged his horse for either a pony or. reindeer, and became a jovially elfish person in appearance like some of the characters in old pagan legends and something

Instead of hanging up their stockings French children put their little sabots by the fireplace to receive their presents.

How Italian Children Receive Their Gifts

Little Italian children receive their presents at the Christmas dinner table, or as in some small provinces by drawing them from the "Urn of Fate."

THE little folk of Italy sing L carols around a miniature manger lighted with candles. Little is known of Santa Claus and Christmas Trees. Instead of holly, they use gay flowers.

Russian Children Masquerade as Animals

After the Christmas carols, it is a quaint custom in Russia for the children to masquerade as animals on Christmas Eve, in remembrance of the Nativity of the Manger in Bethlehem.

ON Christmas Eve, young and old go through the Russian villages singing carols, Kolyada songa

In the old days, singing peasants received coppers from the rich for the Christmas songs.

A masquerade followed in which the carolers dressed up to look like the animals which were near that Bethlehem manwhere the Child was born.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS for Children

HEADQUARTERS for Children's Christmas Presents is Marshall Field & Company, the Juvenile Floor where everything for children is on one convenient floor: Toys, Dolls, Radio, Presents for Pets, Favors, Christmas Tree Ornaments, Athletic Goods, Games, and Puzzles, even Apparel.

Wherever Christmas is celebrated, children especially are remembered. Giving Gifts and having Santa come down the chimney to fill the children's stockings are almost universal in America. The stocking custom came from children of Holland and France putting out their little shoes in which to receive their Christmas Presents.

THE CHRISTMAS TREE came from GERMANY

There are many logends about Christmas Trees, but the very first Tree with its presents and trimmings as a Christmas tree is swid to have appeared in Strassburg in 2608

THE Christmas Tree custom was keptup along the Rhine for 200 years, and then spread over all Germany. Prince Albert has been given the credit for bringing the custom to England, although a Christmas Tree is known to have been used at the court of Henry VIII. Early German settlers brought the Christmas tree to American children.

Much mystery is made in Germany around theroom where the Christmas Tree is hidden until Christmas Eve before sup-per when the tree is lighted, the room is opened, and the excited children receive their presents. Kris Kringle, of course, trimmed the tree and left the gifts.

"Merry Christmas" Came from England Along with Mistletoe and Holly

Helly and Mistletos, Crackling Yule Logs, Christmas Gorols, Plum Pud-ding, Woodcack Pie and Boar's Head, the bospitality of Open House, the cheery greeting of A Merry Christmas, bone all come straight from England.

IN ancient Druid days, the Mistletoe was regarded as sa-cred, and in winterwas hung in the homes in honor of the sylvan gods. When Christmas was es-tablished, Mistletoe became a festive decoration but was soon banished from the churches because of the privileges of kissing that went with it and holly was substituted.

Yellow Cab

Now accepts standing orders

Don't you think it's wise to lay up your car for the Winter and place a standing order for a Yellow Cab? Do you enjoy bucking the heavy and fast increasing traffic and running around in circles looking for a place to park your car?

You can't drive your own car anywhere in peace and comfort any more. You can't even drive to the theatre without a vast amount of trouble. You have to park from five to six blocks away, often in some lonely spot where your car may or may not be safe,

Turn your burdens over to the YELLOW CAB. Let it call for you at regular hours every morning and every evening. Use it for the theatre. Figure up the cost and you'll find it will be less than operating your own car, to say nothing of the inconvenience and grief it will save you, especially in

THE TERMS OF CONQUEST

HOWARD VINCENT O'BRIE

Harry Hanson in the Chicago Daily News says: "As in his cared novel, 'Trodden Gold,' Mr. O'Brien has touched on innumerable topics of the day—labor strife, high wages, bribery of school board officials, ruthless methods in getting textbooks adopted, the board officials, ruthless methods in getting textbooks adopted the shady side of the war, conscientious objectors, the independence of women, and much else. These topics are discussed much as we might discuss them on our way home from Chicago to Winnetts on the 5:19—that is to say, sketchily, lightly, and not vehemently.... The Terms of Conquest, although reminding us often of Trodden Gold, is a step forward."

The Philadelphia Public Ledger says: "A great and enduring autobiography like Franklin's is hardly translatable into a notice of a thousand words. Only the flavor can be given. And it is so with Johnson's.... There is an unflagging succession of delightful stories about persons of note, about incidents of travel, about people and places. There is laughter on almost every page, mingled with and illustrating the parts played in history, art, literature, and what he calls 'spiritual lobbying', by the author." With illustrations.

U. S. Government Says, for Cooking,

Gas is Cheapest

COMPARATIVE TESTS conducted by the United States
Department of Agriculture (Washington) and the Ohio
State University (Columbus) prove conclusively the economy and efficiency of gas for cooking purposes as shown above.

In making these tests the fuel costs were taken as follows: Coal Oil, 15 cents per gallon; electricity, 3 cents per K.W.H.; coal, $13.00 per ton; manufactured gas, $1.00 per 1,000 cubic feet.

The general rate for Gas in Chicago is 95 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, or 5 cents less than the rate figured by the government and university analysis.

This means that customers of this Company enjoy an even lower cooking cost than the very low gas cost shown in the

The tests were based on cooking a dinner consisting of steak, escalloped potatoes, spinach, bread, butter, rice pudding, coffee, cream and sugar, with portions for six people.

These tests are important, because they represent official government recognition of the fact that Gas is cheapest.

We Believe that the CHENEY is the Most

Perfect Music-Reproduc-

ing Instrument Made

The CHENEY Period Cabinets are surpassingly beautiful in the au-thenticity of their design and the lovely texture of their selected woods. They're made by designers of highest reputation and cabinet-workers who are master craftsmen.

The CHENEY "Plays all Records Better" because its Reproducer has perfect articulation, transmitting with precision only perfect tones. The Reproducer has a diaphragm with a needle arm so sens searches out tiniest vibrations.

Rosa Raisa, Dramatic Soprano of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, says: "Never before have I heard an instrument which so perfectly reproduces the artist's voice and the very timbre of the orchestra."

THE MASTER INSTRUMENT

CHENEY for Christmas is the gift superior! It embodies all the attributes one most desires in a gift, beauty, utility, permanency, and it is the finest Phonograph we know. We instituted an investigation, before we decided to sell the Cheney, to discover the perfect Phonograph. After many tests of the utmost severity and many rejections we were satisfied the Cheney was that Phonograph. It is constructed on proved principles and it has continued to reproduce all recorded music in a fashion fully justifying our endorsement of it.

The Cheney's Violin Resonator

The Violin Resonator, of carefully selected and seasoned wood, is one of the Cheney's noted and exclusive features. It is suspended from the walls of the cabinet in such a manner that it vibrates with every note passing through it, thus giving full and perfect expression to each tone. The Resonator may become musically seasoned with increased use so that each succeeding year the tone becomes mellower.

Cheney Tone Control

This is the only Phonograph controlling tone at the source, where it is possible to modulate it as a singer does his voice. This is accomplished by different positions of the needle adjuster so that twelve separate volumes of tone are possible with any one record. These may range from the most delicate to the most resounding bravura effects.

Costs no more than the ordinary Phonograph; Price Range, $100 to $1275

Hear the Cheney before you decide-let us demonstrate this marvelous instrument for you

By PRINCESS BIBESCO.

"Do you know what I think about your egotism?" she asked. "I think subjected to an almost ascetic training so that it should be hard and and sympathy proof."

"I assure you it isn't sympathy proof."

"Sentiment move?"

He laughed. "Really, Miss Selfas, you are almost too severe. Do the I never think of any one except myself?"
"I suppose we all obtrude ourselves sometimes on your consciousn wondered what effect falling in love—really failing in love—would!

"I love Helen."

"Do you see much of Helen?" Selina asked.

"I have seen a good deal of her lately."

"She is so unlike any one else, with her—I don't know how to describe her warm invulnerability."

"Yes."

"Tea."

"She is the only person I know who always responds without getting entangled."

"Does she never get entangled?"

"Never. That is where she is so different from Virginia, who always becomes an active part of every mess."

"Why? Surely life is a journey with people getting in and out of your carriage and yet nobody going to exactly the same place, by exactly the same route."

"New for Virginia. A woman drops a baby on her lap and disappears

"Why? Surely life is a journey with people getting in and out of carriage and yet nobody going to exactly the same place, by exactly the same routs."

"Not for Virginia. A woman drops a baby on her lap and disappears or some one says. 'Do get but at the next statioh. I must show you my mongrel and my bachelor's buttons," and Virginia always gets out."

"What does Helen do?"
Her name slipped out.

"Helen travels with her own wings. She alights and disappears, lighting people on their way, giving them something to look forward to and something to look back on, stirring their imagination, in fact."

"And Virginia!"

The parallel amused him.

"Virginia is always in the grip of some passionate reality."

"What a lot you understand."

"You are laughing at me, I suppose. Understanding is such a curious thing. I see through things and Helen sees into them. There is all the difference, you know. Mine is the elementary stage—the short cut that misses the shape."

Toby looked at her with lazy pleasure, enjoying her air of absurd youth, her wide apart eyes, her blunt nose, her shiny straight hair which made her head look as if it had been plastered with honey, and the ridiculously deep dimple at the corner of her mouth. Only her long sensitive fingers were a clue to possibilities she would have indignantly denied. She gave Toby a feeling of courage and loyalty and dungeons of reserve.

"Aren't you young to be so detached?" he asked.

"Aren't you young to be so detached?" he asked.

"When should I be detached if not now? Doesn't every day bring me an experience which becomes a memory and a warning and a light on something else, until I shall soon get altogether entangled in a net of modifications and qualifications and allowances, based entirely on lapses and disappointments? If I am hard now it is because my standards are high—I shall loss my severity when I lose my filusions."

Toby pondered that.

Toby pondered that.
"It doesn't work like that with me," he said. "I go on excommunicating "It doesn't work like that with me," he said. "I go on excommunicating the said. "I go on excommunicating the said." spite of my own sins." Selina had been led astray. She wanted to talk a him about Helen.

"I suppose," she said a little acidly, "that the lapses are usually women to are too unimportant to count."

"Precisely," he agreed.

Quickly she caught him up.

"And isn't there an ultimate ideal woman to give a flavor to your conmpt for our sex?"

"In my imagination or in life?"

"In your imagination."

"There used to be. I dreamt of a woman my fidelity to whom was a soon for all of my other infidelities."

"How convenient."

"It was."

"Was?"

"Was."

"He is in love," she thought.

"You ought to see a lot of Helen. She should be considered from dreams."

"Do you think so?"

"She has the thing you love best—an imaginative rather than a personal response to everything."

It was the second time she had said that, he reflected.

It was the second time she had said that, he reflected.

"I don't agree with you. I think that Lady Horsham is personal."

"O, but only so superficially so."

"I sainghed. He couldn't help it. He, Toby, who had been so completely like in by her air of alconfess, was now being accused of being deceived by apparent warmth. The story from which in pletter thas been made will undoubtedly make a hit with the youngsters. It's on the order of the tales we've all read in fairy books. The kind where the king's small son is abducted when a baby, slammed about the world for a period of time, and finally allowed to come into his lawful inheritance. There are cruel plotters and kindly peasant women and a wretched queen mother and a throne usurper. Now wou have an idea what "A Prince of a King" is all about.

Miss Pearson as the mother doesn't do so well. Other adults in the cast play up nobly, and Dinky Dean is hug gable all the time—though he hasn't the divine gift, even in his saddest moments, of making those who witness him miserable. Well—if one has the "spark" one has it; and the world discovers the fact for itself. If not—NOT. And that's that.

The photoplay is pretty well staged and directed, and the photography is good. There's a clever dog to entertain you, too.

Richard Bennett, well known to the "legitimate," who is to appear in the Goldwyn production of "The Eternal City," seems to be switching his allegiance from stage to screen. He is quoted as saying:

"It is becoming more and more evident at each succeeding Broadway premiere that most of the first night audiences should never have been allowed in the theater. They are noisy, they come in late and climb over one another on their way to their seats after the curtain is up; they chatter, they rustle their programs, they point at celebrities seated in boxes—they do everything, in fact, but what they should—namely, concentrate on the play. Worse than that, they prevent any one else from concentrating on the play.

Worse than that, they prevent any one class from concentrating on the play. Still worse, they make it almost impossible to hear, giving the impression the actors are inaudible. 'Launni' is a civil engineer — Yes. The present system of recent example of a beautiful play that was killed in this manner.

"Two methods suggest themselves for dealing with offenders. The first is to shoot them. This is feasible, but the executioner would probably be punished instead of being rewarded. The second is to educate them."

Auditorium Theatre F. RAY COMSTOCK & MORRIS GEST HAVE THE HONOR OF ANNOUNCING The World's greatest tragedienne

ity, rather than an asset, to the average woman. For, unfortunately, few of us possess arms which hover tact fully between the jackstraw and the Corinthian column. If we're not built too Sheraton, we're built too Mission For this reason that sleeve which reveals either every angle or every bulge of the arms is often most successful when there is some cuff or gauntlet or puff to diminish its acid qualities. Fortunately these palliatives are not far to seek. Especially popular is the deep, gauntlet-like cuff which is incorporated in today's model of acorn brown crèpe. Here these cuffs are of self fabric and tucked. The tucks are self fabric and tucked. The tucks are reasserted in a band about the hips and in another ladder-like section de-scending from shoulder to just below the hem. This last named item occurs only in the troot. Brown kollector per-

FLAMBEAU IS INTERESTING

That's where Bill Dormeyer has it on us. He writes that he and his brother Ben are snugly entrenched for the winter and expect to live on the shores of Gunicek right through the cold months.

Chunks of fat venisoneare hanging up high and dry for the winter meat supply, the canned goods have been bought, snowshoes are ready, traps are out, so let winter come, writes Bill. It listens good. Some fellows have all the luck, sure nuff.

Peoria, Ili., Dec. 14.—[Special.]—The awarding of the annual track and field meet to Bradley of Peoria, the admission of Macomb Normal of Macomb, and the election of W. T. Harmon of Illinois college as president were the important features of the annual meeting of the Illinois Intercollegiate Athletic conference, popularly known as the Little Nineteen, here teday.

Two resolutions to be acted upon at a future meeting are "that any school employing a coach whose salary is paid in part or entirety from percentage of the gate receipts shall be harved from the conference."

The second calls for the election of a commissioner for the Little Nineteen to have duties similar to those of the Big Ten commissioner.

EARLIER CHICAGO. EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: "Apple Day" is now generally observed, but the first Apple Day in Chicago was celebrated in 1843. I have heard my father mention it several times. In the fail of that year, the steamer "Globe," freighted with a cargo of Michigan apples, docked on the north side of the river, just east of Wells street. A few minutes after all hands had gone ashore for the accustomed tibation in honor of a completed voyage, the ship's bolliers axploded with a coar that shook the entire downtown Athletic club navigated their way to four new world's records last night as the formal opening of the post in the Sovereign hotel, Kennore and Graville avenues. Johnny Weissmuller, Harold Krueger, John Parley, and Ethel Lackie were the water artists who enlivened th program by smashing existing marks.

Weissmuller negotiated the 110 yard sprint in 59 1-5, clipping down the record of 1:02 3-5 held by Harry Hebner, former captain of the Tri-Color squad.

Krueger Shatters Mark.

Krueger did his performing in the 50 yard back stroke. He was clocked in 29 25, which is just on-fifth of a second under the record held by Warren Kealoha of Honolulu. "Stubby" was forced to the utmost to slash down the mark, but the timers agreed that it should be allowed.
